

Through competition, all must improve to stay "on top". Why should anyone have to wait around trying to "catch" the traffic or weather on a typical radio station when you can automatically tune in and get what you need with XM? Sounds to me like some people are just unhappy because they see money going into other people's pockets other than their own! This is what freedom is all about, free to run a business and the freedom of the consumer to make the choice. Don't like it? I have heard that there will be many new opportunities in radio in Iraq!
